Re: Docket #98N-1038, "Irradiation in the Production, Processing, and Handling of Food"

Dear Sir or Madam,

Please be advised that I strongly support the labeling of irradiated food, so that consumers can make an informed decision about whether they want to buy irradiated food or not.

It is essential that the FDA inform the public through adequate labeling that clearly states when foodstuffs have been "treated with radiation" or have been "treated by irradiation". These words plus the radura, need to be readily visible on the label, so that the public can make informed choices about which foods we wish to purchase.

Thank you for considering these views.

With best wishes, sincerely,
